

COTTEY Chronicle

January 24, 2024

Sarah Polo

Dr. Sarah Polo has a new scholarly publication, a chapter featured in the edited collection Writing Assessment at Small Liberal Arts Colleges. The collection is now in print at:

<https://parlorpress.com/products/writing-assessment-at-small-liberal-arts-colleges>

A copy will be acquired for the Cottey Library.

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Foreword
Writing Assessment at Small Liberal Arts Colleges: Sites for Visibility and Collaboration	ix
Jill Gladstein
Introduction	xv
Section I: Methods and Models	1
1 Questions and Answers from Writing Assessment: Methods and Reporting at SLACs	3
Megan O'Neill
2 The Possibilities and Challenges of WEC- Driven Writing Assessment	21
Crystal Fodrey
3 Assessing a First-Year Writing Seminar at a Small Women's College: Practices and Opportunities	39
Sarah E. Polo
Section II: Alliance Building and Collaboration	67
4 A Data-Driven Model of Collaborative Assessment: Harnessing Writing Program and Writing Center Data for Continuous Improvement of Writing Support	69
Bryan A. Lutz and Justine Post

Sarah Polo

This semester, the FWS program will hold two professional development opportunities related to writing and teaching writing:

Artificial Intelligence and Writing Assignments

Thurs, Jan 30, 11:00 AM

RBAC 158

Designing and Implementing Collaborative Course Projects

Thurs, Feb 27, 11:00 AM

RBAC 158

These sessions are part of the First-Year Writing Seminar's training for FWS 101 instructors and are also open to any faculty or staff interested in writing or who use writing in their work. Contact Sarah Polo (spolo@cottey.edu) for more information.

Cottey College
FIRST-YEAR WRITING SEMINAR
SPRING 2025

Professional Development for Faculty & Staff

Artificial Intelligence and Writing Assignments

11:00 AM
RBAC 158

Designing and Implementing Collaborative Course Projects

11:00 AM
RBAC 158

Contact Sarah Polo for more info (spolo@cottey.edu).