On September 13, 2026 the ecology class went to Birdsong Conservation Area in Collins, MO for stream ecology data collection. At the stream, the class collected data on macroinvertebrates in two different habitats, riffles and pools.

The class also took data on three abiotic factors that affect aquatic organisms. Assisting the class with data collection were two stream ecology alumnae, McKenna Gibson and Jerricho Jonker. The students enjoyed the experience and were happy to take off their waders at the end.
